It was announced that Julius would attempt to break the Utah record now held by Durant, but the rules of the Century wheelmen governing this kind of racing state that no part of the course can be sidden aver twics.

As the Liberty park path is circular and some forty-odd laps to the hundred miles, no attention will be paid to a claim for a road record. The time for the distance was down but not bad under the conditions. The wind was blowing a gale a greater part of the time. Another great drawback to speed was the large numbers of children overtuaning the path during the entire race. Yesterday was May day, and hearly all the school children of the city spent a greater purt of the afternoon at the park. The track was crowded with youngsters, and it is a wonder that some were well seriously hurt. Resides Julius, several other wheelmen with speed proceivities recled off a few fast miles during the afternoon. Oscar was paced during the afternoon. Oscar was paced during the afternoon.
